THE BOOK

In an indirect, delicate and poetic way this book tells about the terrible experience of losing a close family member, a death that disrupts the life of a child and its family... a chasm that opens... but that is not the end of everything.

A delicate story to talk about the pain but also about the opportunity to overcome it to find a new way of living together.

THE AUTHORS

Texts: Beatrice Masini

She was born in Milan where she lives and works as a journalist and translator of novels (including Harry Potter, from the third volume in the series onwards), and as children's book editor for Fabbri Editori. She has also published over fifty books for children, many of which have been translated into other languages.

Illustrations: Arianna Papini

She lives and works in Florence. As author and illustrator, she has published more than 70 books with Italian and European publishing houses. She has participated in different exhibitions in Italy and overseas. She is a volunteer for the Helios Association at the Department of Pediatric Onco-haematology, some of her texts are mise-en-scène in the pediatric wards of hospitals.

TALKING ABOUT THE LOSS OF A CLOSE FAMILY MEMBER
