

THIS IS ME

DUE OUT: OCTOBER 2010

In Mummy's tummy you are alone, but you feel safe and protected. Then you are born, you meet other people and the questions and comparisons start. And one question stands out above all: but who am I?

Created from the collaboration between CAF (Centre for Assistance for abused children and Families in difficulty) and Carthusia, this book is the result of a desire to create a tool for children, in order to prevent situations of abuse and maltreatment. It was inspired by the conviction that developing a sense of self-respect and awareness of one's own feelings and emotions in very young children is the best form of prevention.

This is ME aims above all at prevention, but it also aims at leading young and old towards dialogue, and listening to emotions and feelings, suggesting the right way to approach the highs and lows of daily life.

TWO OUTSTANDING AUTHORS

Domenico Barrilà: text conception

Emanuela Bussolati: illustrations and narrative course conception

Domenico Barrilà is a psychotherapist and Adlerian analyst who has written widely for adults, but who also considered the children with whom they would come into contact. Now he is devoting himself especially to them.

Emanuela Bussolati is one of the most highly considered children's authors and illustrators. She is currently working for numerous publishing houses both in Italy and abroad.

Series:

GROWING UP WITHOUT SIDE EFFECTS

Devised and edited by Domenico Barrilà

A series for helping the youngest come to terms with the doubts that they may have about themselves. The aim is to give them a simple, clear and accessible tool for dealing successfully with the pain of feeling inadequate, and thus making them feel more peaceful and surer of themselves and their ability to succeed.
